Sam was initially uncomfortable with humans. Once he discovered having his face cuddled he just melted and made progress by leaps and bounds. He still takes a while to warm up to his handler but tries very hard to please. With a little bit of advance and retreat you can halter, lead and groom Sam. He picks up all 4 feet and has had his first trim, and loads in a trailer. He also had his first ride at the Tribute to a Wild Born Legacy event and has since been saddled numerous times. We also recently started ground driving Sam and he has taken to it like a fish to water. He takes the bit very easy. We think he will make a great “cart pony” or kids horse.
